

Songhis sent one of his lieutenants after Jalal ad Din.

Suddenly Jalal turned and dealt his pursuers a stinging defeat.
Now the Great Khan took charge, pursuing the Khwarezm heir against the Indus River (in what is now Pakistan).

Jalal led charge after fearless charge. Unable to break the Mongol group, he at last leaped into the river and swam away. Renghis forbade his Archers to shoot. "Such a son, he exclaimed, "must a father have!"

As for Muhammed (the father), General Jube and General Subedei chased him through Iran to the Caspian Sea, where, exhausted, he died of pleurisy. He was buried in the rap of a servant.

Sanghis Khen first took Hnat in 1221. He spared the inhabitants the 1st time.

Khen Citizens later had the impertinence to rebel, Sanghis said to a general: "Since the dead have come to life, I command you to strike their heads from their bodies
